

DOLPHIN RESCUES BOY

In 2000, Davide Ceci fell out of his father's fishing boat off the coast of Italy. Davide didn't know how to swim but was saved when a dolphin pushed him up out of the water towards the boat so his father could pull him back in safety.

DOLPHINS SHOW THE WAY

In 2004, 12 scuba divers were swept away from their boat in the Red Sea. Rescuers searched but couldn't find them - until a group of dolphins jumped over the prow of the rescue boat, all in the same direction. They followed the dolphins and found the scuba divers.

DOLPHINS KEEP DIVER AFLOAT

In 2006, Matthew Harvey was knocked unconscious while scuba diving. After about 56 hours in the water, the crew of a passing yacht spotted him, surrounded by dolphins who were apparently keeping him afloat.